Court Urges Residents to be Cautious of Calls Demanding Payment or Threatening Arrest for Allegedly Missed Jury Service

Aug. 21, 2026

The Superior Court of Los Angeles County is alerting residents to a reported jury duty scam involving callers falsely claiming that an individual has missed jury service and has an outstanding warrant.

Residents are encouraged to be cautious of unsolicited phone calls, emails, or text messages regarding jury service, particularly communications that include threats of arrest, claim a warrant has been issued, demand immediate action, or request personal or financial information.

What Residents Should Know

The Superior Court of Los Angeles County does not call, text, or email residents to threaten arrest, demand immediate reporting to a courthouse, or request personal or financial information. The Court will never ask for Social Security numbers, credit card details, or bank information by phone or email.

Residents who receive a suspicious jury-related call or message should:

- Never provide personal, financial, or any identifiable information.
- Never make any payments or follow payment instructions from the caller.
- Never rely on personal details provided by the caller as evidence that their communication is legitimate.
- Not click on any links or respond to suspicious text messages or emails.

Residents will receive jury-related text notifications only if they have explicitly opted to receive them.
